TIME THEMED CHRISTMAS PARTY

We chose a unique theme to do justice to our clients' brief. Steampunk harks back to the 19th century, blending a Jules Verne-era of science fiction with a Victoriana style. A reimagined world where the industrial revolution meets futurism and time travel is possible.

Laser cut music box invitations will reveal a steampunk ballerina in a nest of cogs. Victorian style gas lamps and 3D mapped images of cogs and clock faces will illuminate the entrance to the house. Steampunk carollers will sing at the entrance and a stilted lady will serve champagne during the cocktail reception. The Steampunk Master of Ceremonies will guide guests to the marquee, where they will walk into the inside of a clock with flying mechanical dirigibles and long tables dressed with Vanda orchids, rose petals and Steampunk props. A live jazz band will perform during dinner, culminating in a mechanical ballerina and aerial act.

RUSSIAN THEMED CHRISTMAS PARTY

Imperial Russia epitomises the level of luxury and style we wanted, with its rainbow of colours, liberal use of gold and slight air of mystery, to create a spectacular event. We focused on two aspects of Imperial Russia that we felt really encapsulated that period. The first is the Fabergé egg, created by the House of Fabergé in St. Petersburg. The highly decorated enamel egg shells, painted in a multitude of colours, were given as gifts by the Imperial Royal Family. Our second concept is the Winter Palace in St. Petersburg, opulent in the extreme and home to the Royal Family during this period.

Fabergé egg invitations with a pop out Winter Palace will give a glimpse of the magic to come. The entrance to the house will be illuminated with 3D mapping of the Church of Split Blood. A Balalaika instrumental performer will play during the drinks reception. The Toastmaster will then lead guests to the marquee which will be a miniature version of the Winter Palace. Tables dressed in white and gold will have red rose centrepieces and Fabergé eggs suspended from above. Dinner will close with a burlesque act that will emerge from a Faberge egg, followed by an instrumental DJ on the dancefloor. The night will culminate with a 3D projection show with a firework display inspired by the white nights.

ROAST LUNCH

Lunch for a select group of friends and family will be held on Christmas Eve. We wanted this part of the event to feel very traditional and festive after the extravagance of the previous evenings. We created a relaxed afternoon event based around 'The Twelve Days of Christmas'. With a traditional roast dinner on the menu, live instrumental harp and flute performance and a calm Skandi vibe, this is the perfect way to end the weekend.
